BLOOD DONATION CAMP

The NSS Unit of the institution successfully organized a Blood Donation Camp with the aim of promoting voluntary blood donation and raising awareness about its life-saving significance. The camp was conducted in collaboration with an authorized blood bank and a professional medical team, ensuring strict medical supervision and adherence to safety protocols throughout the programme.

The event commenced with a brief inaugural session emphasizing the importance of blood donation and highlighting the vital role of youth in community service and social responsibility. Prior to donation, all volunteers underwent medical screening to assess their eligibility and ensure their well-being. The medical team maintained high standards of hygiene and followed all necessary safety measures during the entire process.

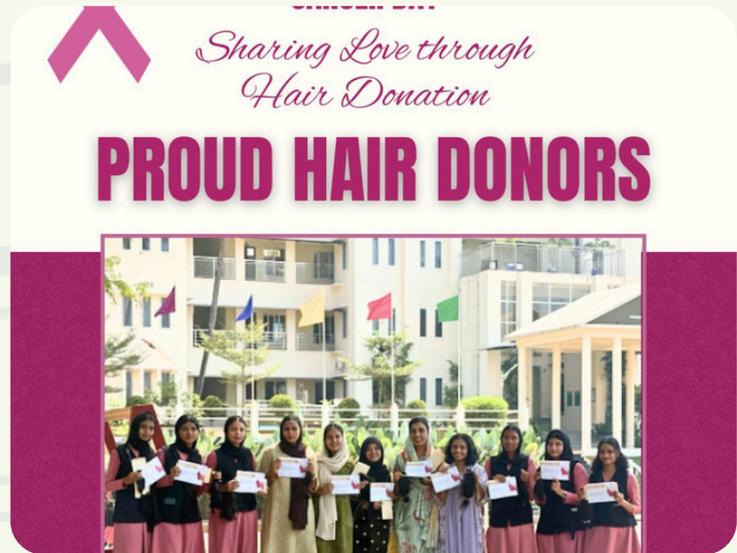

A total of 44 students voluntarily donated blood, demonstrating their compassion, commitment, and dedication to social welfare. Refreshments were provided to the donors as a gesture of appreciation for their generous contribution.

The camp concluded successfully, making a meaningful contribution towards supporting patients in need of blood transfusions.

GIFT OF LOVE ON WORLD CANCER DAY

On the occasion of World Cancer Day, observed on 4 February 2026, the Department of Social Work at MSTM Arts and Science College, Perinthalmanna, organized a Hair Donation Camp along with a Cancer Awareness Session. The programme aimed to extend emotional and physical support to cancer patients and to promote awareness about cancer care and support initiatives.

As part of the initiative, 14 participants, including faculty members and students, generously donated their hair to support individuals undergoing cancer treatment. Their compassionate gesture reflected a deep sense of empathy and social responsibility.

The Cancer Awareness Session was led by Mr. Jayakrishnan, Coordinator of B.D.K. (Blood Donors Kerala), Perinthalmanna, who emphasized the importance of cancer awareness, early detection, and the role of community support in improving the lives of patients. The gathering was also addressed by the Vice Principal, Muhammad Shajahan K. P., and the Head of the Department of Social Work, Ms. Ashlin Jo Antony, who appreciated the participants and highlighted the significance of such humanitarian initiatives.

The programme concluded successfully, inspiring students and faculty members to contribute meaningfully to society and reinforcing the values of compassion, service, and solidarity with those affected by cancer.

THE LETTERS OF HOPE

As part of the World Cancer Day observance, the Letters of Hope activity was organized on the college campus to promote empathy, compassion, and emotional support for individuals affected by cancer. The initiative aimed to encourage students to express solidarity and offer words of encouragement to those battling the disease.

Students were invited to write short, anonymous letters conveying messages of hope, strength, and positivity to cancer patients. A dedicated writing space was arranged with the necessary materials, and students participated voluntarily with great enthusiasm.

Clear guidelines were provided to ensure that the messages remained respectful, sensitive, and encouraging, without including medical or religious advice.

The letters focused on themes such as courage, resilience, emotional strength, and reassurance, reminding patients that they are not alone in their journey. The activity witnessed active participation from students and served as a meaningful platform to nurture empathy and social responsibility.

The programme concluded successfully, reinforcing the importance of emotional support and community care in promoting the well-being of individuals affected by cancer.
